

F1 MINI SOLAR RACING CAR

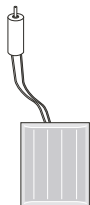

Part of our world's smallest range

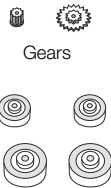

1

To build your own super fast F1 racing car, you will need these components:

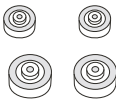

Wheel
Axles

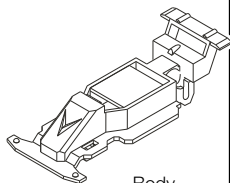

Solar Panel
with Motor

Gears

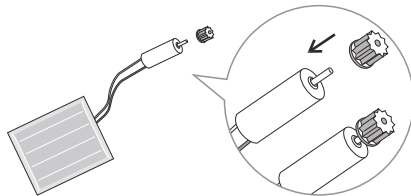

Wheels

Body

Step 1 To fit the small gear to the motor; place the flat side of the gear on to the axle. Allow a gap of approx. 1mm between the motor and the gear.

IMPORTANT: make sure you do not press too hard as this may damage the components.

Step 2 Push the motor gear through the side of the car body as shown in the picture.

Step 3

Pressing GENTLY (in order not to damage it), fit the solar panel onto the roof of the car, making sure that the wires are clipped to the side.

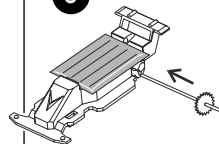

Check the panel is firmly in place.

Step 4 Fit the gear wheel onto the rear axle as shown in the picture. Push it along carefully until 6mm of axle projects through the gear wheel.

Step 5 Feed the rear axle through the holes at the rear of the car and fit a set of wheels on it. Make sure the gears mesh together.

Step 6 Feed the front axle through the brackets at the front of the car and fit the remaining wheels on it.

IMPORTANT: make sure the wheels are not pressed too tightly into the body of the car.

Congratulations!

Your F1 solar car is ready to race!

By adjusting the front axle within its bracket, your F1 car can race in a straight line or curve to one side or the other.

HAVE FUN RACING!

- The F1 solar racing car is not intended as a toy for small children.
- The F1 solar racing car works best when placed on a flat smooth surface.
- Place in sunlight or under a strong halogen spotlight. NB: Model will not work under normal overhead lights.
- To ensure your F1 solar racing car remains in good working order, clean the wheels and solar panel on a regular basis by gently wiping to remove dust/dirt that may slow your car down.

WARNING

- Not suitable for children under 3 due to small parts
- Adult supervision is required when making the car to avoid damage to the panel and wires.
- Care should be taken if playing with this in direct sunlight to protect children from UV light.
